

Big Bang Re-Issues Classic “Gorilla Snot™” Guitar Pick & Drum Stick Grip Enhancer.

Big Bang Distribution has announced the re-release of “Gorilla Snot™”, the original, highly-popular, naturally-sticky substance created to help guitarists, bassists, drummers and other musicians improve their grip on picks, sticks, mallets, bows and other implements while also reducing cramping and muscle fatigue. Gorilla Snot’s increased gripping power allows musicians to play more confidently, as well as more comfortably, in any performance situation since they can hold their picks and sticks more securely with less pressure and concentrate on their playing instead of worrying about losing control of the devices or dropping them.

Just a light touch of Gorilla Snot on a player’s thumb and index finger works whether his or her hands are completely dry or dripping with perspiration. Once applied, Gorilla Snot dries quickly; forming a soft, tacky surface that is moisture resistant and long lasting but evaporates in seconds when exposed to the air.

Although Gorilla Snot has been difficult to find recently, it will once again be available at music stores in the U.S. and around the world due to Big Bang’s worldwide distribution network. A small container of Gorilla Snot carries a suggested retail price of just $7.99 and provides hours of grip enhancement— allowing music makers from beginners to professionals to get a grip and stay in control for a better performance no matter what style of music they play.
